BUILDING LEADERS FROM THE INSIDE OUT

Commitment

Questioning whether to go forward with your decisions, comes down to how committed you are. The will and desire can be cultivated to create the commitment you or your team will need to perform and succeed at the highest levels.

Courage

The fears of failure, rejection, shame, embarrassment are just a few of the monsters that lurk within, keeping us from going for it when we need to. Learn to easily increase your courage to overcome the fears that are keeping you from the success you desire.

Confidence

Personal leadership precedes professional leadership. The confidence that is required of each leader will determine their ability to respond to opportunities for personal and organizational success. Five easy steps to building confidence in self and others are built into Clarence's Leading To Profit™.

From Gutter To Boardroom

Upon waking up in the backseat of a car some years ago to rise from homelessness and poverty to become a Senior Executive within several large companies, I discovered what it takes to be successful and applied these principles to my own career and life. Ironically some years later while sitting in the boardroom of a Fortune 100 company I experienced another 'backseat' moment. An inner calling to help others realize their true potential was a voice too loud to be ignored. I now coach and guide other leaders to overcome their barriers to creating successful careers and lives.
